Over 1,000 people took part in this year's Bike Around the Borough, the nine-mile bike ride across Hackney, which encourages young people to cycle more often

A TOTAL of 1,073 children and adults from 42 Hackney schools took part in this year's Bike Around the Borough (BATB).

The children, who were cycling together in a 'bike bus' – where a group of cyclists ride together along a set route, picking up people as they go – cycled a total of nine miles across Hackney. The idea behind BATB is to inspire young people to cycle more often, getting fit in the process, and discourage more cars on the road. Seth, nine, from Grazebrook Primary School, said: "It was a great experience being able to ride on the roads with all of our friends and hundreds of other children too."

Caribbean Commonwealth citizens who helped rebuild post-war Britain

Mayor Glanville and Deputy Mayor Bramble at the reception with Caribbean elders for Windrush Day. Below: The Bells Project poem 'You Say, Me Say', which was written in part by residents on the housing scheme; part of Hackney Museum's display on the Windrush generation CARIBBEAN elders attended a reception at Hackney Town Hall last month to commemorate the 70th anniversary of the Empire Windrush docking in Britain.

The ship was the first to bring Commonwealth citizens from the Caribbean to the UK, part of a request from the British Government to help rebuild Britain after the Second World War.

Windrush Day not only commemorates the 500 people on board, but recognises the enormous contribution migrants and their descendants have made to British life and identity from the 1940s to the present day.

As part of the anniversary celebrations, Hackney Museum unveiled a display and the Council's community library service shared a framed poem created at the Bells Project, a housing scheme targeted at Caribbean elders.

Lola Bello said: "Days like Windrush Day are important to learn about the past and what people have suffered and how much we have improved from the old days, as now everybody is united and we have a good community."

Cllr Anntoinette Bramble, Deputy Mayor of Hackney, who organised the reception, added: "It's “Alongside celebrations it's also important for us to honour and respect people affected by this history in the present” really important that as a borough with a large Caribbean community we celebrate Windrush Day and those who came from the Caribbean to help rebuild Britain and shape British society.

"It's also important for us to honour and respect people affected by this history in the present, and realise the hardships that communities like the Windrush generation still face today."

As part of the ongoing celebrations, local project Connect Hackney is calling on the borough's Windrush generation to share their stories for a commemorative book it is producing.

Connect Hackney is particularly keen on hearing from men who live in Hackney, and came to Britain from the Caribbean before 1970.

The book is set to be unveiled at the Windrush tea party, at Hackney Town Hall, on 3 October.

Join in Hackney's first ever kids' carnival on 15 July

HACKNEY is set to hold its first ever kids' carnival this month.

Children from Colvestone Primary School, E8; Hoxton

Garden Primary School, N1; Randal Cremer Primary School, E2; and Southwold Primary School, E5, have spent months taking part in carnival workshops preparing for the event.

The pupils have been creating colourful carnival costumes, learning new dance routines, practising their drumming and more.

They will showcase their work at the free carnival, which takes place at Dalston Square, on 15 July from 1-3pm.

St Joseph's Hospice volunteers Lukenny (left) and Julie with Guy, a Pets as Therapy dog, are just two of the people featured in 'Humans of the Hospice'

Humans of the hospice

SOME 500 volunteers give over 50,000 hours a year to St Joseph's Hospice. Some walk the wards providing kindness and company. Others furiously fundraise to keep the hospice afloat. Now, all their selfless work has been commemorated in a book: 'Humans of the Hospice'.

Inspired by the long-running 'Humans of New York' blog, the book brings experiences like these together, alongside a series of photographic portraits.

Carly Attridge, Head of Volunteering at the

"I find coming here very rewarding, to see people's moods change and lift when they see Guy [the dog]" hospice, decided to use the same template to capture some of the truly amazing stories she heard on a day-to-day basis.

They include those of Julie and Guy, who have been volunteering together since 2016.

Julie said: "Guy is a Pets as Therapy dog. I worried at first that I would find the hospice depressing but I think because I have the dog, everyone is a bit more cheerful. I find coming here very rewarding, to see people's moods change and lift when they see Guy."

Lukenny has been volunteering in the wards and with the fundraising team since last year.

He said: "I sat with a lady who had Alzheimer's.

"It was the first time I had ever spoken with someone who has Alzheimer's, it was an eye-opening experience.

"The lady was really eager to talk and it showed me how you can change someone's day just by talking to them."

Shakespeare's Curtain rises

ONE of Hackney's famous Shakespearian theatres is to come back to life on 21 July.

Leading archaeologists, historians, and performers will present short interactive talks at Hackney House, which is next to the Curtain Theatre, in Shoreditch.

Called 'The Curtain Rises: Diverse Histories at the Curtain Playhouse,' the event, which runs from 1 to 5pm, will explore the theatre's heritage and the diversity of its audiences from Elizabethan times onwards.

The Curtain Theatre was built in 1577, and was briefly home to Shakespeare's own company. It was rediscovered by archaeologists in 2011, and excavated in 2016.

Callan Davies, from the University of Roehampton, said: "We are honoured and incredibly excited to be able to bring performance, discussion, and community engagement to the Curtain Theatre."

Tickets to the event are available to Hackney residents for £10. For more info, and to register for attendance, visit: www.beforeshakespeare.com

New food fair at Nisbet Hall

LOCAL food startups are set to showcase flavours of the world at Nisbet Community Hall in the first of what is hoped will be many resident-led community food fairs. Visitors will be able to sample food from India, the Caribbean, Turkey and much more, all home-cooked by people with ambitions to get into the catering industry. The fair takes place on 28 July, from 12noon to 5pm.

Support budding musicians online, for Hackney Live, on 20 July

UP-and-coming local musicians are being given the opportunity to showcase their talent on the Hackney Live stage, in an exclusive live-streamed music event on 20 July.

Some of the borough's best acts will perform at the event, including rappers, poets, musicians and singer-songwriters.

The music event will take place at BSix College, E5, but is set to be broadcast globally through YouTube Live, Facebook Live and Instagram Live.

This will allow audiences from all over the world to interact with each other and ask questions to the artists.

Online viewers can share their thoughts on the show from 7pm and join the conversation by commenting on the live stream or by using the #HackneyLive hashtag.

The talented group of young people who will be performing in front of an online audience include Rraanna, Assembly, TwinTwo, Edmund, Noah Landoni, Roscoe Roscoe, Vincent and Chiles.

Singer-songwriter Rraanna said: "I feel like this is a great opportunity, it means that so many people can hear my music and I am getting myself out there as an artist."

Regeneration gain

Kings Crescent estate scoops two awards

THE flagship regeneration of a Stoke Newington housing estate by Hackney Council has won two prestigious awards.

The transformation of Kings Crescent estate, N4, won the Mayor of London's Prize at the New London Awards on 4 July. It was also the only council housebuilding project to be named as one of the best new buildings in the UK by the Royal Institute of British Architects (RIBA).

Led by architects Henley Halebrown and Karakusevic Carson, the project to provide hundreds of new and refurbished council homes was one of 49 developments to win a national award for its high-quality architecture. Judges praised this collaboration,

“These awards show that councils can be at the forefront of building a new generation of social housing” saying the project had ‘helped to form a sense of community and ownership’.

The project will now be considered for the annual RIBA Stirling Prize, which recognises the UK's best new building.

The first phase of the development includes 275 modern, high-quality homes and 131 upgraded existing homes, which received new winter garden balconies, as well as new public spaces, courtyards and play areas.

More than half of the homes are for social rent and shared ownership.

The Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, said: “These awards show that councils can be at the forefront of building a new generation of social housing, and I'm so proud that Hackney is demonstrating that exceptional council housing can be built without scrimping on quality or selling off land.”

The project was built and funded by the Council, with homes for outright sale helping to pay for new social housing. All new homes will continue to be managed directly by the Council.

Message from the Mayor

Britannia update

OUR proposals to build a brand new leisure centre, new school and hundreds of homes near Shoreditch Park hit the headlines last week because Anthology, one of our development partners on the nearby Colville Estate, submitted a letter of objection.

Hackney needs improved leisure provision, more school places and thousands of new homes. I'm proud that, despite a lack of Government funding, our Council is finding innovative ways to keep investing in our communities. The comments from Anthology are just some of many we have received. Throughout this project there have been many consultations, public meetings and opportunities for people and organisations to share their views. We want feedback and engagement.

All the representations are publicly available, have been carefully considered and further information is now being collated to address issues raised. This will be submitted to the Local Planning Authority this month and, of course, be subject to further consultation.

For commercial reasons we haven't been able to publish the viability assessment in full, but we are expecting to do so this month, a degree of transparency you won't see from most private developers and something I committed to from the start.

Building new infrastructure on this scale comes with challenges; it's a balancing act, you can't please everyone, compromises have to be made, people often don't like change or new developments near them, and it's regularly clouded by external misinformation.

There are complex technical issues which take time to explain. A common question is about the amount of affordable housing. The mix of housing we're proposing – 81 homes for Council social rent and shared ownership, and up to 400 for sale at market rate – is because we need the income from the homes for sale to help fund the rest of the development.

We don't get any money from Government for new leisure facilities or social housing, and we haven't been given enough funding to pay for a new school of the quality Hackney's children deserve. The Council acting as developer also ensures as much money as possible goes to benefiting the community, and we've phased the project so the affordable homes get built first.

If we didn't act until we found an ideal site for which no one objected and received an unexpected cash windfall to cover all the costs, and were able to balance perfectly nostalgia and the need for 21st-century facilities in a way that pleased everyone, nothing would ever get built.

Find out what we're proposing at: www.hackney.gov.uk/britannia-site

Daubeney Road homes and garden plan approved

PLANS to build genuinely affordable new homes and a permanent community garden in Clapton have been approved.

The 11 high-quality Council homes – part of almost 2,000 to be completed over the next four years – will replace underused garages and car parking spaces in Daubeney Road on the Clapton Park estate.

More than half will be for social rent and the rest for shared ownership.

As part of the changes, land close by in Redwald Road has been earmarked to create a permanent community garden and growing area.

This will replace the temporary growing facility residents had established at the car park, while plans for the site were developed.

The plans for the Council homes were developed in collaboration with residents and locally-

Artist's impression of the Daubeney Road development based architects Al-Jawad Pike this year, creating designs that complement neighbouring homes.

A new pedestrian and cycle through route will also be created, with improved landscaping.

Construction of the homes is expected to begin early next year and finish in 2020.

Discussions with residents about how the new garden will look will begin this summer.

The Council's in-house Hackney Sales team will be marketing the homes for shared ownership.

The fourth Eid street party was a resounding hit Word on the street

Some 500 people took part in the Eid street party hosted by Musalla-An-Noor Mosque, in Dynevor Road, earlier this month

OVER 500 people attended an Eid street party held by Musalla-An-Noor Mosque, in Stoke Newington, on 1 July.

Dynevor Road, N16, was decorated with Union Jack bunting and table covers and colourful balloons to celebrate Eid.

Now in its fourth year, the street party brought together the borough's community in a welcoming, inclusive and fun event.

Residents from all backgrounds, races, ages, faiths and none came together to enjoy free food, entertainment and activities, which were organised by 40 volunteers who pray at the mosque.

The late afternoon sun shone as teenagers mingled with older residents over plates of vegan Indian and Kosher food. The cuisine was accompanied by ice cream, cakes, drinks, popcorn and sweets.

Activities including henna tattoos, Arabic calligraphy, arts and crafts, field games and a bouncy castle ensured that everyone in the crowd had something to keep them busy, interested and entertained.

Guests attended tours of the Musalla-An-Noor mosque throughout the day to learn about the beliefs, practices and teachings of Islam observed by the Muslim community.

“The volunteers all modelled tolerance, gentle kindness and humour and giving just for the joy of it”

Attendees to the event included the Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville; Deputy Mayor, Cllr Feryal Demirci; The Speaker of Hackney, Clare Potter; Deputy Chair of the London Assembly, Jennette Arnold; and Rabbi Gluck OBE.

Mayor Glanville said: “I was really happy to join Musalla-An-Noor mosque for their Eid street party, which had lots of stalls and activities, tasty food and a great atmosphere. Events like this really bring the community together, and I'd like to thank everyone for their hard work in organising it.”

Resident Andrea Cohen added: “The event was fluent, effortlessly educational, non-judgemental and inclusive.

“The volunteers all modelled tolerance, gentle kindness and humour and giving just for the joy of it. We left feeling loved up and high. High on hope.”

Pupils had a wheelie good time at this year's Bike Around the Borough

Easy riders

Mayor Glanville, Deputy Mayor Cllr Demirci, and The Speaker of Hackney Clare Potter joined schools for the annual BATB

A SEA of smiling faces and gleaming bikes greeted onlookers on 28 June as hundreds of children cycled around Hackney for this year's Bike Around the Borough (BATB).

A total of 1,073 children and adults from 42 schools took to the borough's streets by bike, as temperatures soared to nearly 30 degrees, for the eighth annual fun-filled celebration of cycling.

The children, who were cycling together in a 'bike bus' – where a group of cyclists ride together along a set route, picking up people as they go – started from Hackney Downs, and then made their way to Clissold Park via Clapton, before heading down to London Fields and past Hackney Town Hall back to Hackney Downs.

Riders were supported on the nine-mile route by other schoolchildren at packed 'motivation stations', with flag-waving, cheering and drumming to spur them on. Residents and staff from local businesses also lined the route to show their support.

Gabrielle, nine, from Grazebrook Primary School, N16, said: "I have never ridden on the road before so it was great to put my cycle training into practice."

Seth, nine, also from Grazebrook Primary School, added: "It was a great experience being able to ride on the roads with all of our friends and hundreds of other children too."

BATB is the Council's showcase schools cycling event, and aims to get children exploring their borough by bike.

It is organised in cooperation with the Metropolitan Police, and this year was sponsored for the first time by British Cycling, the nation's governing body for cycling, who joined long-time backers Volker Highways and Berkeley Homes.

Cllr Feryal Demirci,

The number of Hackney children cycling to school has doubled in the last decade

DID YOU KNOW?

Deputy Mayor of Hackney, said: "Every year, I see how excited children are to join other schools and discover their borough by bike."

"It gives them a chance to build on the cycle training we offer and see how fun and healthy cycling really is. I'd encourage anyone inspired by BATB, whether you're an adult or child, to take advantage of the Council's month-long bike loans, free cycle lessons and pit stops and get cycling."

Joining Cllr Demirci on

“It was a great experience being able to ride on the roads with all our friends and hundreds of other children” the day were the Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, and The Speaker, Cllr Clare Potter.

Mayor Glanville said: "I was again thrilled to be able to join children and volunteers on BATB. It was inspiring to see their joy and hear their songs and chants as they cycled around Hackney, reclaiming our streets together. They represented their borough with distinction."

Joel Lavery, Head of Partnerships at British Cycling, added: "We were very proud to support Hackney Council in their efforts to encourage more young people to cycle more often and would like to congratulate them on hosting a brilliant day and leading the way."

'Being the best I can be'

Hackney primary schoolchildren have been competing against their own personal bests in a range of sports throughout the year, culminating in the finals on 26 June

THOUSANDS of Hackney schoolchildren have been proving they don't need to compete against others to be winners.

More than 400 pupils from 36 primary schools took to Hackney Marshes on 26 June in the Personal Bests finals, the largest event of its kind in the UK.

They were drawn from about 2,000 children from across the borough who spent months working to improve

"I am proud of everyone who went because we all beat all of our scores on everything and that makes me feel really proud" their results in a range of athletic games – including long jump, triple jump, 60-metre sprint, and shot put. The pupils with the most personal bests in their school were then selected for the finals.

Personal Bests, a Council Olympic and Paralympic Games legacy project, is now in its 11th year. The programme aims to improve young people's health and wellbeing, and prove that sport is for everyone no matter what their ability.

This year the 36 participating teams managed a total of 1,225 new personal bests, with the winning schools Tyssen, N16; St Matthias, N16; and St Dominic's, E9, coming in joint first.

The Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Clare Potter, gave out medals on the day, alongside the coaches.

She said: "A big well done to all the children who have taken part in Personal Bests this year.

With thousands of children taking part, it was fantastic to see everyone enjoying themselves, supporting each other and being the very best they could be."

A Tyssen Community School pupil, who took part in the finals, said: "I am proud of everyone who went because we all beat all of our scores on everything, and that makes me feel really proud of everyone."

A school friend added: "Everybody is different and it doesn't matter if people are faster than you or slower than you, everybody is good at something."

Year 3 teacher Hayley Smith, from Tyssen school, concluded: "It was an absolutely wonderful day and the children loved it! I'm so very proud of our Tyssen children who won by beating every single one of their personal bests. All the children were amazing and it was a lovely event bringing all Hackney schools together."

The Council's Schools and Youth Sports Unit and sports company, Core Health and Fitness, provided the coaches for the programme.

Volunteers from City Academy, Stoke Newington School and staff from engineering company Smiths Group helped out at the finals.

By Harriet Worsley

WENT into the hospice for a rest, and in the end I had to go home for one!" laughs 90-year-old Pauline Clayton, sitting in the Hackney flat bought over 50 years ago, and holding her knitting on her lap.

Adding: "I was in every newspaper under the sun, TV crews were coming from all over the world, I thought it was never going to stop!"

It all began when St Joseph's Hospice, on Mare Street, discovered that flowers from Prince Harry and Meghan Markle's wedding would be donated to the hospice, after the ceremony in May.

"I was just sitting in my room and I said I wasn't really interested in watching the wedding, because it had all changed so much from when I was involved with the royals," continues Pauline. "And that's when the story got out, and everything went a bit mad."

Pictures of Pauline holding the donated bouquet featured in American, Canadian and Bangladeshi press, and even made it into Hello! magazine because Pauline had helped to make Harry's grandmother's wedding dress, more than 70 years before.

The press attention, therefore, was nothing new. In 1947, she was 19 years old and working for Sir Norman Hartnell, the royal dressmaker. Word arrived that she and three colleagues would embroider the 15-foot train on the young Elizabeth's wedding dress and, she says: "We were told we couldn't tell anyone anything about it or we could be prosecuted."

"But the pressure from the newspapers! They did everything they could to get at us. They even rented a room in the pub next door, hoping to see in to the room we were working in. We had to put bars up at the windows. My dad and my boyfriend Geoff, who I went on to marry, would come every day to put girls on their buses, and then bring me home, so the press couldn't get to us.

"I worked 49-and-a-half hours overtime to get it done," she explains. And then the train was made and Pauline became part of history. Quite something for a woman who had to leave education for good at the age of 12.

Pauline says: "I was 11 when the war started. London children were being evacuated to the countryside. My aunt was supposed to take me but she pulled out at the last minute, so I stayed at home in Bermondsey. I remember standing on London Bridge, watching St Paul's Cathedral burning."

At first, those children who remained in the city went to school for at least half a day. But as the bomb damage worsened, and "I was always two years behind [the Queen]. She was born two years before me and got married two years before me!"

more teachers left London, Pauline's education finished for good. She got a job in a shop, but was determined to find work as an embroiderer.

Pauline recalls: "In my lunch break I went to Hartnell's. They asked if I did tambour embroidery work. I said yes, of course, but really I had no idea. I just watched them, and taught myself."

The tactic worked. Pauline worked for Hartnell's for over 20 years, frequently working on dresses for the Queen Mother including one, she laughs: "Where every single sequin had to be individually sewn on. What happened? One of the corgis jumped up on her. We had to re-do an entire panel."

Two years after working on Elizabeth II's wedding dress, Pauline had a wedding of her own: "I was always two years behind her," she laughs. "She was born two years before me, got married two years before me..."

Having been bombed out of Bermondsey, Geoff and Pauline built a happy life in Hackney. In 1953, another big project came in: Elizabeth's coronation gown. Pauline recalls: "We each had to embroider a commonwealth emblem, and Hartnell then picked the ones he wanted on the dress. I got the lotus flower for Ceylon, and he picked it – my design ended up on the coronation dress."

Not that Pauline was star-struck. She says: "They needed someone to go to the Abbey to be there with a needle and thread in case there was an emergency. I asked if I could take my knitting. They said no, so I sent a junior girl along instead. I just couldn't imagine sitting there for hours, with nothing to do."

It's a philosophy that she has stuck by, even in retirement. Geoff died in the 1980s and Pauline contracted bladder cancer a few years ago. When she left the hospital, a member of the St Joseph's team visited the flat where she lives alone. Now, she goes to the hospice for regular respite care.

"I hate sitting around doing nothing," she explains. "I knit twiddle muffs to help dementia patients and I've always got one on the go. But I can't move around easily, so some days I might be sat here all day in the flat. I can't cook any more either, so I rely on ready meals in the microwave."

"But when I go to St Joseph's, there are people coming in and out, keeping me company. If I've got problems with my health, or benefits, they always sort me out. I look forward to the food too. It's a proper treat, a break."

Fruit and veg voucher success

A SCHEME to help residents afford healthy food and boost local street markets is set to reach even more families this year, thanks to a fresh injection of support.

The Rose Voucher project has been operating in Hackney since 2014, supporting more than 250 families with £45,000 worth of vouchers that can be redeemed in the borough's markets.

This year additional support from the Council, as well as children's centres and market traders, means that the project should reach around 140 more families.

Jonathan Pauling, Chief Executive of Alexandra

“The scheme is hugely successful at getting families with young children to eat more fruit and vegetables”

Rose Charity, said: “We believe that everyone should have access to affordable and healthy food in their local area. The scheme is hugely successful at getting families with young children to eat more fruit and vegetables.”

Vouchers are redeemable at Ridley Road and Hoxton markets, and the project also works with five children's centres in Hackney: Sebright, Comet, Thomas Fairchild, Linden and Minik Kardes.

On 5 July, the Alexandra Rose Charity held a celebration of its vouchers scheme at Ridley Road market, where £400 of vouchers were given out.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Deputy Mayor of Hackney, said: “Childhood obesity and food poverty are two big challenges that families face in Hackney. The Rose Vouchers project is a great way of helping families to access a healthy diet while giving them an extra bit of financial security.”

One Hackney mother, who relies on the voucher scheme, added: “The vouchers have made a massive difference to my family. The kids love them.

“They have really helped us incorporate lots of fruit and vegetables into our daily diet and it's been nice to explore different fruit and vegetables that we've not tried before.”

News in brief

Celebrate London National Park City Week in Hackney

HACKNEY'S parks and green spaces are set to play host to picnics, tours and events to celebrate London becoming the world's first National Park City.

The first ever London National Park City Week, which coincides with the first week of the school holidays, will feature community picnics and plantings, park and nature walks, including bat and bird spotting walks, and an art exhibition in Robin Hood Community Garden.

Running from 21 to 29 July, there are nearly 20 events over the week, all hosted in Hackney's parks or green spaces.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Deputy Mayor of Hackney, said: “National Park City Week is a celebration of London's incredible green spaces. We're proud to support it with our own series of events in Hackney's beautiful parks and green spaces, celebrating the nature and people that make them great.”

Hackney's parks and green spaces were last year awarded with a record 23 green flags.

Orthodox Jewish residents recruited to boost rates of recycling

CHAREDI women have been recruited by the Council to encourage other Orthodox Jewish residents to recycle their food waste.

Although residents are recycling more than ever, food peelings, scraps and leftovers still make up about a third of all rubbish by weight.

Most homes in Hackney receive free weekly food waste collections from the doorstep or communal bins, and the waste collected is turned into compost or used to generate electricity.

Last year the Council recruited Charedi women to speak to some 500 residents about the benefits of recycling and how to do it. This led to a 32 per cent increase in participation and a 13 per cent increase in the amount of food waste collected in the Stamford Hill area, which is home to one of the largest Charedi Orthodox Jewish communities.

The Council is now building on the success of the trial, with local Charedi women receiving training from the environmental charity ecoACTIVE and knocking on doors and talking to residents about recycling.

Cllr Jon Burke, Cabinet Member for Energy, Sustainability and Community Services, said:

“Hackney's food waste is taken to processing plants a few miles away, where it is used to make compost and produce clean 'biogas', which helps to reduce the cost of waste disposal.”

Both the trial and the current doorknocking scheme have been funded by Resource London.

Visions Festival

4 August, various Hackney venues

VISIONS Festival has revealed the final additions to its line-up, and it is shaping up nicely.

The one-day festival had already announced the likes of IDLES, HMLTD, Marika Hackman, Rival Consoles, Chastity Belt and Sports Team would be hotting up its five Hackney venues and three outdoor spaces on 4 August.

Now, we know that six-piece art-pop band

ALASKALASKA will be joining them too, along with Sassy 009, Jockstrap and Porridge Radio and more.

At the Visions Market you can take part in special t-shirt screen-printing sessions from The Positive Press, have your palm or tarot cards read or play a round of Beer Pong hosted by one of the acts. Visions Festival takes place on 4 August, with a pre-party on 3 August. Tickets start at £33.

Dona Onete

17 July, Rich Mix, 35 - 47 Bethnal Green Road, E1 6LA

DONA Onete may be 79 years old, but her music career is very young indeed. She recorded her debut album Feitiço Caboclo at the age of 73. Now she's bringing Banzeiro – her second album of up-tempo tunes celebrating life, love and sex – to East London, to prove that age is just a number. 'The grand dame of Amazonian song' is performing at the Rich Mix for one night only, so you'll have to act fast if you want to catch the high-octane banguê (Amazonian-ska) or No Meio do Pitiú, the song Gilles

Peterson declared his top track from anywhere in the world last year. Banzeiro, by the way, is Brazilian word for the wave created by boats as they pass through the river. Considering that Onete has gone from playing small bars in her hometown to thousand-capacity shows across Brazil in just a few years, she certainly seems to be riding the crest of this wave...

Tickets cost £12. For more information, or to book, visit: www.richmix.org.uk/events/music/dona-onete of Brazil's biggest live acts. The group not only amplify sound, but also the essence of local Brazilian traditions. Influenced by Jamaican sound systems, percussive bass lines merge with Afro-Latin rhythms such as Frevo, Samba-Reggae, Pagode and Kuduro. The remaining line-up includes Flavia Coelho and record producer, Prince Fatty delivering the sounds of bossa, reggae, dub and ska. Ages 16+, under 18s must be accompanied by an adult. £20.50. Village Underground, 54 Holywell Lane, Shoreditch, EC2A 3PQ. Info: 020 7422 7505; www.villageunderground.co.uk/events/baianasystem-special-guests/

WYRD SISTERS

13 & 14 Jul, 7.30pm
Drama group Hackney Players will be putting on a production of author Terry Pratchett's fantasy novel, 'Wyrd Sisters'. Adapted for the stage by Stephen Briggs. All is not well in Lancre. King Verence is dead, murdered some say by Duke Felmet who now rules. However, there is a baby boy who has been hidden from the Duke and placed in the care of Granny Weatherwax, Gytha Ogg and Magrat Garlick – Witches of Lancre. Can they restore him to his rightful place? Will he succeed? It's all down to The Wyrd Sisters! £8/ £6 for children. All ages. Spun

Until 28 July, Arcola Theatre, 24 Ashwin Street, Dalston, E8 3DL

WHAT happens to friendships when terrorist acts scatter all your values in the wind? That's the question asked by 'Spun', the latest play to be staged at the Arcola. It is a big and brave subject to tackle, all the more so because this is writer Rabiah Hussain's debut play. But Hussain cleverly sublimates complex themes into the story of a single, ordinary friendship. As kids, and even as teens, Safa and Aisha, two British Pakistani Muslim girls from East London, were inseparable. As adults, however, their different career paths take them in divergent directions, Safa to work in the City, and Aisha to teach in Newham. When London is attacked one day in July, Safa and Aisha feel the whole world spinning. As extremists from all sides take hold of the city, can their relationship survive the upheaval? 'Spun' is staged at the Arcola Theatre until 28 July. Tickets start at £16, though concessions are available. To find out more, or to book tickets, visit: www.arcolatheatre.com

Marilyn Okoro put St Paul's with St Michael's pupils through their paces

NEVER give up and believe in yourself; those were the words that children at St Paul's with St Michael's Primary School, E8, heard from Olympic bronze-medallist Marilyn Okoro.

The Team GB star visited the school earlier this month to talk about her journey to becoming an Olympic athlete and inspire kids to achieve their goals.

After leading the assembly, Marilyn put the kids through their paces in a series of training sessions for each year group.

Rayne, seven, a Year 2 pupil, said: "We learnt that you should never give up and keep on trying. I really liked the training sessions – some of the exercises like the plank I knew as I do it at my Taekwondo lessons."

"I want all the kids to realise it is good to dream but you need to be prepared to work at it too"

Marilyn, who won bronze in the 4x400m relay at the Beijing Olympics, visited the school as part of her role with Inspired Through Sport, which supports GB athletes with their training and development and helps organise visits to schools.

She said: "I didn't have many opportunities growing up in a single-parent home in Stonebridge, so to have someone come into your school that has achieved stuff is really powerful."

"It's amazing to come to Hackney to do this – having the Olympics here in 2012 brought a lot of emphasis to sport in this area. My cousins are down the road and I know how proud they are – I can relate to these kids because this is where I grew up, this is what I know.

"The opportunity to come here is an honour. I want all the kids to realise it is good to dream but you need to be prepared to work at it too."

Apply for free ESOL courses

ADULTS who want to study their way towards a better grasp of English have been handed a unique opportunity to do so for free. New City College, N1, has announced plans to waive fees for its ESOL (English for speakers of other languages) courses in 2018/19.

New funding rules, introduced by Government, mean that a far larger number of adults can now apply to study ESOL courses for free across the country. New City College has decided to extend this free-pass to all of its adult ESOL students.

Gerry McDonald, Chief Executive and Group Principal, said: "As one of the country's largest providers of ESOL, we have the resources to make sure that this significant group of East Londoners are not disadvantaged, by eliminating ESOL course fees irrespective of learners' circumstances."

Parkwood Primary School receiving their Spanish award

Schools earn Spanish awards

TWO primary schools will doubtless be throwing a fiesta after earning gold status in the Hackney Primary Spanish Awards. Parkwood Primary School, N4, and William Patten Primary School, N16, received their accolades from John Rolfe of the British Council and Dr Capellán CEO of Spanish Education at the Embassy, at a ceremony in the Tomlinson Centre, E8.

Other schools also had their success recognised. Grasmere Primary, Gainsborough Primary and St Paul's with St Michael's received silver awards for success in embedding Spanish across the curriculum, while Daubeney Primary achieved the bronze award in recognition of the high quality of their Spanish provision. Designed to promote the learning of Spanish across the borough, the awards are open to every primary school in Hackney. So far, 17 have gained an award.

New working group will examine SEND policies and provision in Hackney

OVER 100 parents, carers, teachers and special needs teachers came together last month to discuss special educational needs and disabilities (SEND).

The round table Hearing SEND Voices event, held at City Academy Hackney, E9, on 26 June, was an opportunity for the Council to find out what residents think about existing provision and how it could be improved.

The feedback from the event will help to shape policies around SEND and will also inform the work of a new working group.

That group will be led by independent chair Bernard Hawes, Chair of Governors at Stormont House special school, E5, with representatives from parents' groups, campaign groups and other professionals. Their first meeting is expected to be this month.

Cllr Chris Kennedy, Cabinet Member with responsibility for SEND, hosted the event. He said: "SEND funding and provision is a crucial topic and one that we need to get right. I understand parents' frustration at previous attempts by the Council to address funding issues, and I hope that this event will help reset our relationship with parents.

"The feedback has given us a starting point for the working group, and I look forward to updating them on the work of that group."

"We're plugging the gap for high needs – or 'top-up' – support by over £7million a year, yet face ongoing reductions to our Government grant across the Council of £35million over the next two years.

"The Council will continue to lobby the Government to make sure our voice is heard, and I hope that parents and carers will join us in that, as well as taking part in ongoing discussions about SEND provision."

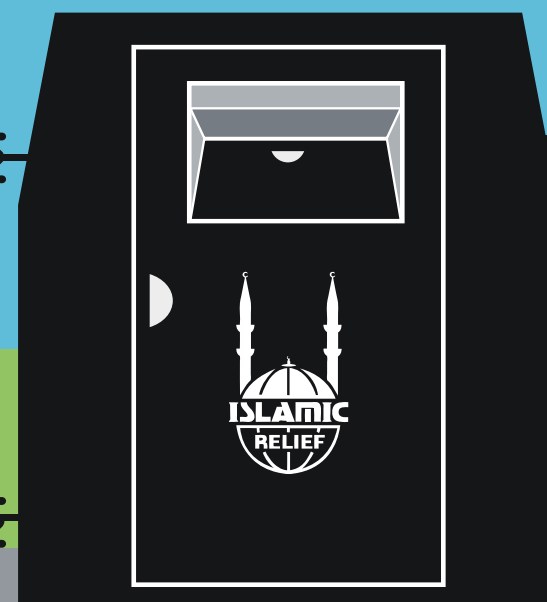

You might not love your old clothes any more, but someone else might.

So instead of throwing them in the bin, use our textile banks.

We even want things that can't be reused like worn out socks, tatty clothes and old bed sheets. 70% of items are sold to raise money for good causes. Everything else is shredded and turned into new items like cloths and blankets.

There are over 100 banks across Hackney.

Inspire young men

Male volunteers are wanted to take part in a networking event aimed at inspiring the next generation of young men, on 2 October

MALE volunteers are wanted to take part in a careers event aimed at inspiring Hackney's young men.

Enthusiastic men who have lived, worked or attended school in Hackney are eligible to apply. The ideal candidate will have an interesting career story to share with young people – from overcoming adversity and starting up a business, to working in the creative or social care industries.

At last year's event Ryan Boothe, from Stoke Newington School, said: "I feel really inspired, this has actually helped me think about how I present myself

“ This event is an opportunity to create a network of professionals that can work with the next generation ” and can be more confident in myself to achieve and do what I want to do in life.”

The networking event will see young men from Hackney's schools listen to speeches and take part in discussion groups to talk with the volunteers.

Cllr Anntoinette Bramble, Deputy Mayor of Hackney, said: "Inspiring the next generation to achieve their dreams is the duty of us all. This event provides a chance for our young people to learn about a wide variety of careers, while giving them a chance to talk about the trials and tribulations of the world of work.

"It is also an opportunity to create a network of professionals that can work with the next generation to help them be the leaders of tomorrow.

"If you're an entrepreneur, have an unusual job or love what you do, I would encourage you to volunteer."

The event is set to take place on 2 October at Young Hackney's Forest Road Hub, from 12noon to 4pm. Volunteers will be asked to give valuable insights into their chosen career paths, talking about real life experiences, including their successes and failures.

The closing date for applications is 3 September.

Sing at St Paul's Cathedral

A HACKNEY church is collaborating with St Paul's Cathedral to offer Hackney children the chance to learn from some of the country's most experienced choral directors, and sing in a world-famous venue.

St Paul's West Hackney will be teaming up with its illustrious namesake to run a four-day, summer holiday choral course in July.

Fr Niall Weir, Rector of St Paul's Church, said: "Singing has always been the highlight of my life, and now we've got the chance to share that with others."

The course will take place in St Paul's Church in Stoke Newington over four days and will conclude with a performance in St Paul's Cathedral. It will be led by Tom Daggett and Alex Hodgkinson.

The course will run from 26 to 29 July from 9.30am-5pm, with a free breakfast club from 8.30am on each of the four days. The cost is £3 per child per day or £5 for families. It is aimed at Hackney children aged between eight and 15 years old.

To book a place, email: musicoutreach@stpaulscathedral.org.uk; or call: 020 7245 8367.

Clissold Rangers scores big

LAST November Timothy 'TJ' Eyoma helped England become under-17 World Cup winners. Tayo Edun won the Euro under-19 Championship with England last summer. Paige Bailey-Gayle, meanwhile, helped England's under-17 Ladies advance through the Euro Qualifiers.

What do these players have in common? They all learned their skills at a Hackney club – Clissold Rangers – run by volunteer parents in a park, without a ground, clubhouse or any formal funding.

Local boys and girls, aged between five and 15 years old, can turn up to Saturday morning training sessions, near the northwest gate of Clissold Park, and train for just £3.

For more info, or to sign up, visit: www.clissoldrangers.com

Footballer Nicole Caicado and diver Noah Williams have both received the Youth Sport Fund

Hackney Youth Sports Fund now open to young athletes

YOUNG athletes in the borough are encouraged to apply for the Hackney Youth Sports Fund to support their progression in their chosen field.

The fund is open to young people aged nine to 23 years old with sporting potential, who live, or go to school in the borough. It is also available to community clubs that wish to provide provision in sport for young people.

Money can be requested for equipment, travel, accommodation, competition fees or specialist coaching.

Diver Noah Williams, who won silver at the Commonwealth Games this year, is one of 425 young people who have been supported by the Council since 2007.

Nicole Caicado, 13, received funding this year and has been scouted for her skills on the pitch by the Millwall Community Trust to represent Millwall Lionesses at under 14s.

She said: "I really enjoy playing football and being around positive people – this helps my confidence."

The application closing dates are 12noon on 28 September and 28 January.

Fun run!

Athletes Perri Shakes-Drayton, Dwayne Cowan and Bianca Williams join Orchard Primary School pupils and parents for the launch of The School Run fitness initiative

It isn't often you find Team GB sprinters limbering up beside you for a school run. But children and parents at Orchard Primary School did exactly that, when Perri Shakes-Drayton and others joined them to promote a national fitness campaign.

Perri, who grew up close to the E9 school and won a silver medal at last year's World Championship, joined the school on 27 June, along with Dwayne Cowan and Bianca “Juggling parenthood with keeping the whole family fit and healthy is tough”

Williams. The athletes ran alongside 100 parents and children in order to encourage other families to exercise together.

The event was part of The School Run – a campaign launched after research revealed that four out of five London parents lose five hours of exercise a week after having children, and gain an average of 1.5 stone.

Organised by gym operator DW Fitness First, in collaboration with the UK's four National Governing Bodies of athletics and running, it encouraged all families to run their route to school for a week, beginning on 25 June.

Lee Pinnington, from DW Fitness First, said: “Juggling parenthood with keeping the whole family fit and healthy is tough. This survey shows that while parents want to stay fit, they find it difficult because of the demands of having children.”

The campaign also includes a workout plan aimed at families who want to exercise together.

Matt Birkett, Head of Athletics and Running at England Athletics, said: “We hope the new School Run initiative will inspire many more adults and children to become more active.”

Having a mindful summer

FOR some, the summer is synonymous with food, wine and evenings of overindulgence. For others, it means football. Now you can do both in Hackney.

Mental health charity Mind has launched two new projects. For those fond of food and films, the charity has launched Movies with Mind – an outdoor cinema experience and street food market set in London Fields. On the evenings of 18 and 19 July, cult 80's classic 'Ferris Bueller's Day Off' and Oscar-winning 'Little Miss Sunshine' (pictured) will be screened to a backdrop of Street Feast's selection of food trucks, beer from Five Points Brewing Co and cocktails from the Background Bar.

Ticket revenues, as well as all profits from the food and drink, will go to Mind.

Timed to chime in with World Cup fever, the second project is a collaboration with Sporting Hackney FC, Kings Sport and the London Football Association. Together, they have organised weekly Saturday morning football coaching sessions on Hackney Marshes. Between 10.30am and 12noon, until 18 August, three Sporting Hackney FC coaches will be on hand to provide coaching to suit all levels. A wellbeing practitioner will also attend the sessions, to give advice about mental health issues. For more info on both events, visit: www.mindhackney.org.uk

GP practice training days

HACKNEY and City residents are being advised that GP practices will be closed for one afternoon in July for staff training, as part of an ongoing drive to improve practices and the services offered to patients.

Patients will be able to use their practice until 12noon on the day of the training, and not all GP practices will be closed on the same day. Posters will be displayed in the waiting area and front door to remind residents of the date of closure. Training dates and times will also be available to view at: bit.ly/2KERIO4

If a patient requires urgent medical advice during the afternoon closure of their GP practice, they can contact the out-of-hours service on: 020 8185 0545.

Young people vote in favour of Mayor of London's proposed ban on junk food ads

THE borough's young people have voted in favour of the Mayor of London, Sadiq Khan's, proposal to ban junk food adverts on the Tube, buses and Overground trains in London, to tackle high levels of obesity in children.

They voted in favour of a motion put forward during a debate at Clapton

Girls' Academy last month, with Mayor Khan's food policy team, Mayor of Hackney Philip Glanville, and students from Clapton Girls' Academy, The Urswick School, Skinners' Academy and Cardinal Pole Catholic School.

The debate, on 21 June, was organised by the Council to provide feedback for Mayor Khan's public consultation about the proposed ban on food and drink ads across the Transport for London network. The ban would target food and drinks high in fat, sugar and salt.

Nearly half of 10 and 11 year olds in Hackney are overweight or obese – caused partially by junk food and sugar.

Mayor Glanville said: “People rightly discussed the balance of regulation, but as the result shows we feel that urgent action is needed and that certain food and drink companies will not change by choice unless we take bold policy decisions. That is why I too support the proposed ban.”

The Council is set to look at additional measures to restrict advertising and promotion of junk food across the borough.

Hackney's Sugar Smart campaign aims to reduce excessive sugar consumption in the borough. For more info visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/sugar-smart

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by residents and serve for four years. The last borough-wide elections took place in May 2018. Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee Council services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR PHILIP GLANVILLE

Hackney's executive Mayor Philip Glanville was directly elected by the borough in 2018. He is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. The Mayor holds monthly casework surgeries in the Town Hall. To book an appointment, e-mail: mayor@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 2212. Residents are first encouraged to contact their ward councillor. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney, who is chosen annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Clare Potter.

A healthy eating programme from Shoreditch Trust

www.shoreditchtrust.org.uk

SHOREDITCH Trust's Food For Life Programme works with members of the community to encourage affordable healthy eating, cooking skills and food knowledge. White fish, like cod and other less-common varieties (see suggestions below), are a good source of low-fat protein and minerals like selenium, potassium and vitamin B12. Adults in the UK are recommended to eat two portions a week of fresh, frozen, or tinned seafood (one of them oily fish such as mackerel or salmon) to help reduce their risk of developing Alzheimer's, heart disease and some cancers. You can serve with vegetables as suggested below, or, if you have the time and inclination, you could make guacamole, salsa and a Mexican-style slaw with shredded cabbage, radishes and a lime dressing.

Fish tacos

Serves 4 as a main dish

Preparation time
20 mins

Cooking time
10 mins

Ingredients

- 3 tbsp olive oil
- 2 limes
- 1 tsp chili powder
- 1 tsp ground cumin
- 2 tsp paprika
- 3-4 skinless fillets of white fish, you could try tilapia or haddock (approx 600g total)
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 8 corn tortillas
- Small bunch of fresh coriander
- 2 tomatoes (diced)
- 1 avocado (sliced)
- Small bunch of radishes or a small red cabbage (finely sliced).

Method

- Preheat the oven to 220C/200C Fan/Gas 7
- Cut the fish fillets in half lengthways, so you have long strips, and arrange in a shallow roasting tray or tin. Mix together the cumin, paprika and chilli powders, and sprinkle over the fish fillets. Mix the juice and zest of 1 lime with the black pepper and the oil in a small bowl
- Drizzle the fish with the oil mixture, and roast in the oven for 8-10 minutes, depending on the thickness of your fillets. Check to see if the fish is cooked through before taking out of the oven. Warm the tortillas in the oven for 1-2 minutes
- Arrange the fish on a plate, sprinkled with the chopped fresh coriander. Put the warm tortillas on another serving plate and allow people to build their own tacos. Serve with sliced avocado, tomatoes and radishes and lime wedges.

Sign up to online panel Hackney Matters to have your say

RESIDENTS can earn points and prizes for sharing their opinions on important local issues through the online residents' panel, Hackney Matters.

Issues that are addressed include the future of Hackney's streets, roads, parks, education and public health.

Panel members are rewarded for continued commitment and they are automatically entered into free draws to win prizes and vouchers, as well as to earn redeemable points.

The surveys are completed online in panel members' own time. Occasionally, they will be invited into the Council for focus groups and events.

Hundreds of residents from diverse backgrounds have already signed up, and the Council is keen to recruit new members to help refresh the panel so it can ensure it is representative of Hackney's population.

Panel member Sharon Shamedje, 47, said: "I really enjoy being a part of the panel, I feel like I am able to get involved and make a change in my community.

"I have seen the difference being on the panel can make, especially in housing and youth services."

London Borough of Hackney. Designation of an area for Additional Licensing of Houses in Multiple Occupation (HMOs), Section 56, Housing Act 2004

The London Borough of Hackney ("The Council") in exercise of its powers under section 56 of the Housing Act 2004 ("the Act") has on the 10th of May 2018 designated the entire area of its district, as subject to Additional Licensing. The designation applies to all Houses in Multiple Occupation ("HMOs") that are occupied under a tenancy or a licence unless it is an HMO that is subject to mandatory licensing under section 55(2)(a) of the Act or is subject to any statutory exemption and with the exception that, in respect of a converted block of flats to which Section 257 of the Housing Act 2004 applies, the Additional Licensing scheme will only apply where all the units of accommodation in the block are privately rented.

This scheme will be known as The London Borough of Hackney Designation of an Area for Additional Licensing of Houses in Multiple Occupation 2018. The designation is not required to be confirmed because it falls within a description of designations for which the Secretary of State has issued a General Approval dated 26 March 2015.

The designation shall come into force on the 1st of October 2018 and shall cease to have effect on the 30th of September 2023.

The designation may be inspected, during office hours by appointment, at the Private Sector Housing Team's offices at 2 Hillman Street (The Annexe) London E8 1FB (contact details below).

Further information, advice and assistance regarding the designation and how to apply for a licence, is available from the Council's Private Sector Housing Team, contact details as follows:

- Telephone: 020 8356 4866
- Website: www.hackney.gov.uk
- Email: privatesectorhousing@hackney.gov.uk
- Mail: Private Sector Housing Team, 2 Hillman Street (The Annexe), London, E8 1FB

Landlords, managing agents or tenants within the designated area are advised to seek advice on whether their property is affected by the designation by contacting the Council's Private Sector Housing Team.

Upon the designation coming into force on the 1st of October 2018 any person who operates a licensable property without a licence is liable to prosecution and upon summary conviction is liable to an unlimited fine or alternatively may be made subject to a financial penalty not exceeding £30,000. Such failure to licence may also lead to an application for a rent repayment order. Furthermore no section 21 notice may be given in relation to a shorthold tenancy of a part of an unlicensed HMO so long as it remains such an HMO.

Public Notice

London Borough of Hackney. Designation of an area for Selective Licensing Section 80, Housing Act 2004

The London Borough of Hackney ("The Council") in exercise of its powers under section 80 of the Housing Act 2004 ("the Act") has on the 10th of May 2018 designated an area of its district, as subject to Selective Licensing. This designation applies to the entire districts of each of the three wards of Brownwood, Cazenove and Stoke Newington in the London Borough of Hackney as delineated and edged red on the map at Annex A.

The designation applies to any house which is occupied under a tenancy or licence within the area unless a statutory exemption applies.

This designation will be known as the London Borough of Hackney Designation of an Area for Selective Licensing 2018.

The designation is not required to be confirmed because it falls within a description of designations for which the Secretary of State has issued a General Approval dated 26 March 2015.

The designation shall come into force on the 1st of October 2018 and shall cease to have effect on the 30th of September 2023.

The designation may be inspected, during office hours by appointment, at the Private Sector Housing Team's offices at 2 Hillman Street (The Annexe) London E8 1FB (contact details below).

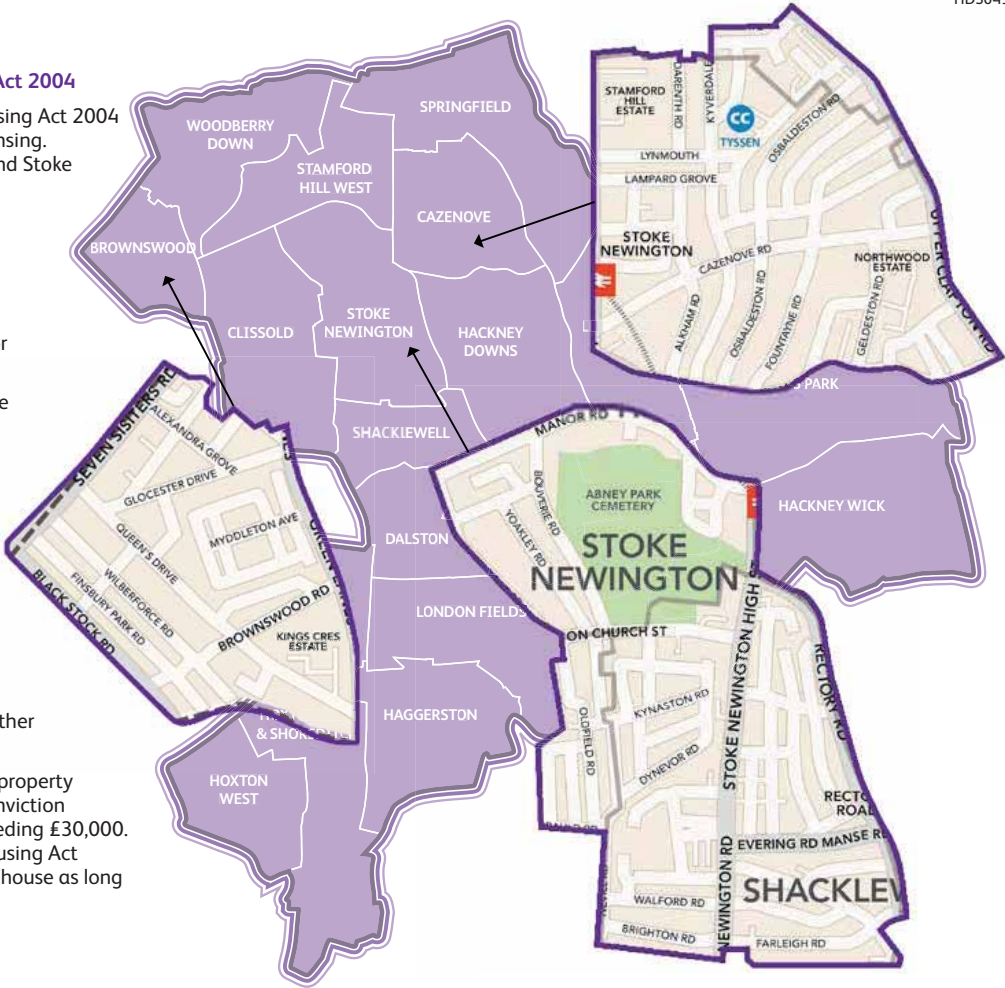

Further information advice and assistance regarding the designation and how to apply for a licence, is available from the Council's Private Sector Housing Team, contact details as follows:

- Telephone: 020 8356 4866
- Website: www.hackney.gov.uk
- Email: privatesectorhousing@hackney.gov.uk
- Mail: Private Sector Housing Team, 2 Hillman Street (The Annexe), London, E8 1FB

Landlords, managing agents or tenants within the designated area are advised to seek advice on whether their property is affected by the designation by contacting the Council's Private Sector Housing Team.

Upon the designation coming into force on the 1st of October 2018 any person who fails to licence a property that is required to be licensed commits an offence and either may be prosecuted and on summary conviction ordered to pay an unlimited fine or alternatively may be made subject to a financial penalty not exceeding £30,000. Such failure to licence may also lead to an application for a rent repayment order. Furthermore no Housing Act 1988 s21 notice may be given in respect of a shorthold tenancy of the whole or part of an unlicensed house as long as it remains unlicensed.
